RESOURCES

As we strive to enhance medical communications and serve our community, we take pleasure in sharing information that helps people manage their health better.

In line with this mission, we want to highlight Just Like Family Home Care, an a-la-carte PSW service we discovered at one of our recent trade shows.

If you know someone who might benefit from the support of a Personal Support Worker, please reach out to Just Like Family for more details.

Tips When Considering IN-HOME CARE

When choosing an in-home care provider, here are some things to consider to ensure the best fit for your loved one:

- 1. Management Style - How does the company manage itself? Are their people friendly? Do they manage situations in a reasonable and timely way? Do they feel cold and clinical or take a warm, holistic approach to caregiving?
- 2. Expertise - Do they have people on staff with the skills and experience to properly care for your loved one's specific needs?
- 3. Caregiver Fit - Do they match the temperament of the caregiver with the person they'll be caring for? You may not want a high-energy extrovert tending to someone who is shy and easily disturbed.
- 4. Cultural Sensitivity - Is there a good cultural fit? Caregivers who are knowledgeable about the traditions or values of the person they'll be caring for can be more sensitive to their needs, and help them maintain and engage in cultural traditions.
- 5. Flexibility - How flexible are they? Health and schedules can change quickly in life - does the home care company lock you in to term contracts that you have to pay out before being able to cancel?
- 6. Fees - Do they keep adding in extra costs for add-on services? Are you tied into a particular time frame or duration? Is there a minimum charge or time per visit?
